

First Nations Health Communication Symposium: 19th October 2023

EOI open: Presentations, Panels & Info Stalls

Join us at the First Nations Health Communication Symposium as we delve into the theme: "Preparing for our Future." This event brings together First Nations leaders, health professionals, researchers, and community advocates to explore innovative strategies for improving health communication with First Nations peoples.

Topics include:

- Codesign and collaboration
- Intercultural communication
- Culturally safe communication
- Health literacy
- Interpreter mediated healthcare delivery
- Communication training
- Shared decision making
- Communication in clinical education
- Narrative medicine
- Media and health communication
- Bilingual workforce initiatives
- Communication in telehealth

If you would like to present at the Symposium, please complete the form below. Return to tiana.alley@menzies.edu.au by 4th August 2023.

The Symposium is an initiative of the Communicate Study Partnership.

First Nations Health Communication Symposium

Theme: Preparing for our Future

Expression of Interest

Name

Organisation and Role

Do you identify as

- Aboriginal
- Torres Strait Islander
- Both
- Neither
- Prefer not to say

Please identify how you would like to be involved:

- Research Report (15min)
- Practice Insights (15min)
- Panel Discussion – please include name and position of each panel member in outline below
- Lightning Presentation (7min)
- Information stall (Menzies foyer)

Please provide an outline of your proposed presentation (max 300 words)

Please provide details of why your proposed presentation is relevant to this symposium (max 100 words)

Please indicate if you intend to present in person or via zoom

In person

Zoom