

Friday, 30 August 2013

Website equips Menzies for a new age of research and education

Australia's only medical research institute dedicated to improving Indigenous health and wellbeing has unveiled its new website.

The Menzies School of Health Research's new website has been designed to bolster and better illustrate the collaborative approach it undertakes with communities, policy makers, health service providers and other researchers to improve outcomes in Aboriginal health and disadvantaged people across our region.

The website features integrated and intuitive navigation and enhanced access to Menzies' award-winning researchers and their projects. Additional features of the new website include:

- Interactive achievements timeline illustrating Menzies' history and achievements over 28 years
- Integrated researcher profiles incorporating current research projects, a top 10 publications list and news tabs
- An online resources portal to equip families, communities and health care providers with the latest in educational health resources
- Education and training pages for current and budding health professionals to further their studies and career opportunities in public health
- An easy to use donation page for donors and friends of Menzies to support the critical research being undertaken at Menzies

To view the new Menzies website visit www.menzies.edu.au

Media contact: Richmond Hodgson

communications@menzies.edu.au; 08 8922 8438; 0408 128 099

Menzies School of Health Research are Australia's only Medical Research Institute dedicated to improving Indigenous health and wellbeing. We have a 28-year history of scientific discovery and public health achievement. Menzies work at the frontline and collaborate broadly, partnering with over 60 Indigenous communities across Northern Australia to create resources, grow local skills, and find enduring solutions to problems that matter.